This project will allow to experience on site the spatial expansiveness, dimensions, and layout of the former Roman countryside estate "Villa Rustica".

Visitors will be led to discover the locations of the former buildings of the site through simple, unpretentious paths, which start at the main access point at the central northeast axis.

The whole public space is covered by these paths, which are consistently conceived in axial and diagonal parallelism. The spatial experience concludes with a final station offering a new interpretation of the Porticus Hall.
